QUESTION 1

You have a table that stores transactions regarding a product. The table's name is Widget Ledger Entry. According to Microsoft Dynamics NAV standards, what type of form is used to access this table?

- A. List Form
- B. Tabular Form
- C. Worksheet Form
- D. Card Form

Correct Answer: A

QUESTION 2

Both Microsoft Dynamics NAV Server and the SQL Server Option for Microsoft Dynamics NAV implement optimistic concurrency in form-based updates. This means that if two users attempt to update the same table at the same time:

- A. The first user to go into the edit form for that table will lock the other user out of that form. The second user will have to wait for the first user to leave the form before he or she can continue.
- B. Both users can go into the edit form for that table and edit records, but if they both try to edit the same record at the same time, the first user to edit the record will lock the second user out of that record until he or she finishes editing it.
- C. Both users can go into the edit form for that table and even edit the same record. However, the first user to finish editing will be able to save the changes, while the second user will get an error saying that someone else changed the record.
- D. Both users can go into the edit form for that table and even edit the same record. The system will automatically compare the changes that the two users made and attempt to make both sets of changes. If both users changed the same field, they will both get an error.

Correct Answer: C
